She's there to perform at the island's biggest event of the year.

And Nelly Furtado ensured she looked her best as she spends her time in Malta in style.

The singer puckered up with scarlet red lips as she posed for photos in a striking red frock.

Dressed down: She wore a dressing gown and protected herself from the rays before undergoing the shoot in the sunshine

Furtado walked along in metallic slip-on sandals and protected herself from the rays with an umbrella over her head and large shades over her eyes.

She was taken to Comino to undertake the shoot, before she was taken back to the shore and carefully stepped out of the boat.

It comes just a day before she's expected on stage at the Isle of MTV, with 50,000 people set to attend the open air concert.

Nelly will be joined by the likes of Flo Rida and will.i.am, who are also set to perform.

Will.i.am has already also been spotted in the country.

He looked relaxed and care free as he took in the sights before the big day.

The Black Eyed Peas star wore white trousers and a white T-shirt with a leather waistcoat over the top and sunglasses on his head.

He posed casually against a wall as he lapped up the rays.

Speaking about the show tomorrow, Nelly has said: 'Oh my God, I'm excited! I'm looking forward to it. I just wanna go rock out, have some fun.'

While organisers wrote on the event's Facebook page: 'We've got five generators, 15 cameras to film, 10 truckloads of steel, lights, sound equipment and set materials, 5 kilometres of electrical cables and a 250 metre square stage...'
